

IRISH AND SPANISH EDUCATION

Fifteen centuries ago, the clergy men were already teaching their knowledge all over Ireland. During those fifteen centuries, an education system has been created and it has been being improved up until now. Nowadays, Ireland has got a good education system and lots of foreign people go to study there. One of these foreign students that went to study in Ireland in the last few years was me.

When I went there, I realised that Ireland and Spain have got very different education systems, so by doing this project, I wanted to find out about those differences. First of all I looked back to the past to see how their education systems developed and then I checked how their education systems were structured and which their objectives were.

Now, two years have gone by since I went to Ireland and finally, I have resolved all my doubts about the Irish Education System and I have understood a lot of things that I did not feel comfortable with during my stay.

Blai Garcia Costa

Tutora: Ruth Zamora

Spanish classroom in the Irish school where I studied.